THE COP AND THE ANTHEM

Soapy was unemployed. Like many others he was caught in the trap of poverty. His cherished desire was to get into prison, where for many years he had got food and shelter in winter.

There were many easy ways of doing this. The pleasantest was to have a fine dinner at some expensive restaurant and then to refuse to pay and be arrested by a policeman.

Soapy was all right from head to foot. He was shaven and his coat had been presented to him by a rich lady. If he could reach a table in the restaurant unnoticed, success would be his. But as Soapy stepped inside the restaurant the head waiter's eye fell down upon his shabby trousers and worn shoes. His face turned red with anger, and in a moment strong and ready hands turned him about and forced him out into the street.

So he had failed. But on the opposite side of the street there was a cheap restaurant. He made his way to a table in the corner, asked for a beef-steak and again Soapy found himself in the street.

He walked unhappy along the avenue. In a cigar store he saw a well-dressed man lighting a cigar. He had left his silk umbrella by the door. Soapy took the umbrella and walked slowly away. The umbrella owner followed him

"My umbrella," he said sternly. "Oh, it is", said Soapy.

"Why don't you call a policeman? I took your umbrella". The umbrella owner slowed his steps. So did Soapy.

"Of course", said the umbrella owner, I hope you'll excuse me. I picked it up this morning in a restaurant". And the umbrella man stepped back.

Soapy walked on and on, until he reached a quiet street with a small old church at the corner. Sounds of music were heard from the window. Suddenly Soapy stood still, for he recognized his favourite anthem, which reminded him of the days he was young and had friends. Tears came to his eyes. No, he would make a man of himself again, he was still young. Suddenly Soapy felt a hand on his arm He looked quickly. "What are you doing here?" asked the officer. "Nothing", said Soapy. "I see you want to rob the church, come along", said the policeman.

“Three months in prison”, Soapy was told in the Police court the next morning.

The River and Docklands

ЗАПИТАННЯ

- A. What is the busiest waterway in Britain?
- B. When was Britain invaded?
- C. What Bridge was built in 1980s?
- D. What Corporation was set up in 1981?
- E. How many people live in the 'square mile'?
- F. When were the docks closed?

Shortly after their invasion of Britain in 43 ad, the Romans established London at the lowest point where the Thames could be forded. According to the Roman historian Tacitus the city thronged with merchants and their wares within 20 years of its foundation.

The Thames was for centuries the mainstay of the city's traffic and oversea trade. The river remains Britain's busiest waterway, handling some 51.6 million tons of goods per year, as well as being a place for people to relax, in boats or on foot along the banks.

As London has grown the population has moved out from the centre. Today only some 4,000 people live among the office blocks and sandwich shops in the 'square mile' of the City of London.

In the early nineteenth century new docks were constructed to the East. The poor working-class districts that surrounded the docks became known as the East End. Those docks were closed during and after the 1960s. The port is now further down the estuary at Tilbury.

The London Docklands Development Corporation was set up in 1981 to redevelop and revitalize this area. Over 27 billion has been invested in this area of 22 square kilometres. The transport infrastructure has been expanded to link with the rest of London.

THE ENTERPRISIG BARMAN

The other day I happened to finish work earlier than usual. The weather was charming, so I decided to take a walk. Passing by one of the numerous pubs, it occurred to me that I could do with a pint of beer. "There is nothing better as a bottle of beer on a hot day like this!" I thought and entered the Golden Bar.

I looked about the place. It was just an ordinary bar. There were not many customers in it. Several men and women were seated at the tables having their lunch, others were standing at the bar, drinking beer.

I took a seat at one of the tables and ordered a pint of beer. It was brought soon, but as I was in no hurry I took my time drinking it. By and by the place was filled with visitors and soon almost every seat was occupied.

I finished my pint of beer and was about to leave the bar when it began to rain. I waited a few minutes, but the rain did not stop. The strange part of it was that there were no clouds in the sky, and yet it was raining hard.

I could not possibly go out- I had no umbrella or waterproof with me- so I changed my mind and ordered a substantial lunch. I noticed that many people did likewise, so the waiter had plenty of work to do.

The rain showed no sign of stopping. It was falling steadily, though the sun was shining brightly. I was through with my lunch, had finished a cigar, and yet the rain would not stop. It was beginning to get on my nerves. I saw it was no use waiting any longer, so, prepared for the worst, I went out.

I walked a few steps in a hurry and then stopped in surprise. There was no rain. In fact, there had been no rain! What did I see, you may ask? There wasn't very much to see, after all. Just a few yards from the front door of the bar there was an elderly woman comfortably seated on a chair, holding a hose linked to a tap and watering the pavement in front of the bar with all her efforts.

A clever dog, that barman was!

Pumas are large, cat-like animals which are found in America. When reports came into London Zoo that a wild puma had been seen forty-five miles south of London, they were not taken seriously. However, the experts from the Zoo decided to investigate, because the descriptions given by people who had spotted the puma were very similar.

The hunt for the puma began in a small village where a woman picking blackberries saw “a large cat” only five yards away from her. It immediately ran away when the woman saw it. The experts knew that a puma would not attack a human being unless it was cornered.

Whenever the puma went, it left behind it a trail of dead deer and small animals like rabbits. The experts were now sure that the animal was a puma, but where had it come from? No pumas were reported missing from any zoo in the country. So, the experts decided that this one had been possessed by a private collector and somehow managed to run away.

The hunt went on for several weeks, but the puma was not caught. And it's a great worry for a lot of people to think that the puma is still at large in the quiet countryside.

DO NOT LEAVE YOUR VALUABLE PAPERS LYING ABOUT

Truth is Always Strange, Stranger than Fiction (G.G. Byron)

The day of the lecture arrived. They all went into the lecture-hall. Theo and Adams took their seats on the platform. And then, Theo discovered, to his horror that the typewritten copy of his speech had disappeared. The Dean said he would call the candidates in the alphabetical order. Adams first. With despair in his heart, Theo watched Adams calmly take the stolen speech out of his pocket and read it to the professors who gathered to hear it. And how well he read it! When Adams finished there was a great burst of applause. Adams bowed and sat down.

Now it was Theo's turn. But what could he do? He had put everything he knew into that lecture. His mind was too much upset to put the same thoughts in another way. With a burning face he could only repeat, word by word in a low, dull voice the lecture that Adams had spoken so beautifully. There was hardly any applause when he sat down.

The Dean and the committee went out to decide who the successful candidate was, but everyone was sure what their decision would be.

Adams leaned across to Theo, patted him on the back and said smilingly, "Hard luck, old fellow, but, after all, only one of us could win".

Then the Dean and the committee came back. "Gentlemen", the Dean said, "the candidate we have chosen is Mr. Theo Hobdell". The audience was completely taken by surprise, and the Dean continued, "I think I ought to tell you how we arrived at that decision. "We were all filled with admiration at the learning of Mr. Adams. I was greatly impressed. But you remember, Mr. Adams read his lecture to us. When Mr. Hobdell's turn came, he repeated his speech word by word from memory, though, of course, he couldn't have seen a line of it before. Now, a fine memory is absolutely necessary for this post, and what a memory Mr. Hobdell must have! That is why we decided that Mr. Hobdell was exactly the man we wanted".

1. What did Theo discover to his horror?
 - A) that everybody noticed his despair
 - B) that the Dean didn't allow Theo to read the lecture
 - C) that the typewritten copy of his speech had disappeared
 - D) that the professors had left the lecture-hall
2. Theo couldn't read the lecture properly because...
 - A) he had an awful headache

- B) his mind was too much upset
- C) somebody called him
- D) it wasn't his turn to read the lecture

3. The Dean and the committee went out to decide...

- A) who would be the next candidate to read the lecture
- B) who would be the successful candidate
- C) who would buy a present for the successful candidate
- D) how to entertain the audience

4. The audience was completely taken by surprise because...

- A) the Dean and the committee hadn't announced the result
- B) Adams had read his lecture
- C) the Dean was angry with Adams
- D) Theo had been chosen the candidate

5. Why was it decided to choose Theo the only candidate for the post?

- A) because the committee didn't like Adams
- B) because Theo was young
- C) because Theo had a good memory and didn't read his lecture
- D) because Adams refused the post
